Work in Progress

Work in Progress

Comprehensive

Intention: I aimed to reflect the idea that we are all works in progress, designed to evolve and grow. Through this typographic self-portrait, I sought to express my blend of curiosity, creativity, and resilience as I continuously evolve and discover myself.

Process: By arranging letters, words, and glyphs, I constructed a portrait that symbolizes the ever-changing and multifaceted nature of identity. I used two fonts to enhance the design: Goodlife for the portrait itself, bringing a handcrafted and expressive feel, and Condor for the background, adding a sense of balance and refinement. To achieve the final result, I employed tools such as rotate, scale, reflect, Point Type, Area Type, Type on a Path, the Glyphs panel, and the Pencil tool.

Outcome: The result is an expressive typographic portrait that visually represents my journey of growth and self-discovery. It embodies the belief that we are ever-evolving, shaped by our experiences and creativity.
